

BEYOND EMPTINESS

CONTENTS

1. HOW EMPTY IS MAINSTREAM PHILOSOPHY?

1. Most Recent Philosophical Proposals Are Concretely Empty Ideas
2. Some Working Ideas as to Concrete Reality
3. The Concretely Substantial and the Concretely Empty
4. Is Ordinary Language Apt for Expressing Concretely Substantial Ideas?
5. The Concretely Empty and Some Familiar Philosophical Distinctions
6. Some Main Aims and Claims of the Present Work

2. SOME VARIETIES OF CONCRETELY SUBSTANTIAL PHILOSOPHY

1. Exemplars of Substantial Philosophy and Examples of Philosophical Emptiness
2. The Substantial Scientiphicalism of Mainstream Philosophy
3. Memory, History and Emptiness
4. Various Specifications of Scientiphicalism and Various Departures from Scientiphicalism
5. Interactionist Entity Dualism and the Problem of Causal Pairings
6. Concretely Substantial Ideas about Mutually Isolated Concrete Worlds
7. Exploring Philosophical Thoughts that May Be Analytically Empty Ideas

3. THINKERS AND WHAT THEY CAN THINK ABOUT:
FROM EMPTY ISSUES TO INDIVIDUALISTIC POWERS

1. Language, Thought and History
2. Thinking about “The External World”
3. Earth, Twin Earth and History
4. The Banality of Successfully Investigating Unfamiliar Individuals
5. A Concretely Substantial Possibility: Individualistically Directed Powers
6. The Propensity to Acquire Individualistic Powers and Its Historical Manifestation
7. Generalistic Propensities to Acquire Individualistically Directed Mental Powers
8. Generalistic Propensities to Acquire Real-kind Directed Mental Powers
9. Wishful Blindness to Emptiness: Putnam’s “Transcendental” Pronouncement
10. Rereading Modal Claims Substantially and Widening our Philosophical Horizons

4. THE ORIGINS OF MATERIAL INDIVIDUALS: FROM EMPTINESS TO SEQUENTIALISTIC PROPENSITY

1. On the Origin of One Tood, a Particular Wooden Table
2. Some Thoughts about Tables and Some Thoughts about Shmables
3. Origination Conditions, Persistence Conditions, and Boxing a Logical Compass
4. A Central Tenet of Scientiphicalism: Basic Individuals Have No “Memory-Like” Propensity
5. How a Wooden Table Could Have First Been Made from a Hunk of Ice
6. Tood and Tice, a Table First Made of Wood and a Table First Made of Ice
7. Using Modal Terms Substantially: The Case of Determinism
8. Distinctive Material Objects and these Objects’ Distinctive Matter
9. Sequentialistically Propensitied Concrete Individuals
10. Wooden Tables, Ice and Some Sequentialistically Propensitied Basic Individuals

5. THE PERSISTENCE OF MATERIAL INDIVIDUALS: FROM EMPTINESS TO SELF-DIRECTED PROPENSITY

1. Material Sculptures and Pieces of Matter
2. Are There Inconveniently Persisting Material Individuals?
3. Pieces, Lumps and Hunks: Is There a Plethora of Persisting Material Individuals?
4. Is There a Plethora of Extraordinary Persisting Individuals?
5. Ordinary and Not So Ordinary Persisting Material Individuals
6. Using These Sentences Differently and Expressing Substantial Ideas
7. Fundamentals of Fundamental Material Persistents

6. EMPTY DEBATES ABOUT MATERIAL MATTERS

1. Matter Distributed Particulately, but Not even a Single Material Individual
2. Matter Distributed Particulately, but Only a Single Material Individual
3. Matter and Material Objects: Salient Positions on Concretely Empty Questions
4. If Every Basic Physical Individual Is an Absolutely Basic Particle, Will Those Particles Be the Only Physical Individuals?
5. The Debate about Complex Material Individuals
6. An Exploration of the Salient Debate: Popular Paraphrases, Problematic Parallels
7. Complex Material Individuals and Arrangements of Simple Material Individuals
8. Mereological Sums of Simple Material Individuals: Fusions, Fusions Everywhere
9. Sums of Simple Physical Entities and Complex Ordinary Material Individuals
10. Four Distinct Sorts of Spatial Inhabitants: Material Mereological Sums, Material Arrangements, Complex Material Objects and (Complex) Ordinary Things

7. WORLDS, PROPERTIES AND TIME:

A FEW SUBSTANTIAL THOUGHTS AND MANY EMPTY IDEAS

1. Are There ANY Concrete Worlds, Including even the Actual World?
2. Are There ANY Properties or just Propertied Individuals?
3. The Temporal, the Empty and the Substantial: First Part
4. The Temporal, the Empty and the Substantial: Second Part
5. The Temporal, the Empty and the Substantial: Third Part